

Singular and Plural Nouns

Directions: There are 10 mistakes regarding singular and plural nouns in this paragraph. Circle the mistakes and write the corrected word below.

The Pet Whisperer

Nobody really knows how it started. One cat? A rescued hamsters? A mysterious boxes on the doorstep labeled “LIVE SNAKE”? All we know is that at the end of Maple Street lives a person with the most pet anyone’s ever seen (and maybe more than anyone’s ever should see). Her houses looks normal from the outside, but step inside, and it’s like a zoo met a circuses and had a love children in a pet store. Bird squawk Shakespeare from chandeliers. A goat wears pajamas. Three ferretes run a suspiciously organized sock-stealing operation. The person? Calm as a monk in a thunderstorm. No one knows her real name; kids just call her “The Pet Whisperer.” Some say she speaks fluent Guinea Pig. Others claim the pets do their taxies. All we know is, if you hear a meow, a hisses, and a bark in perfect harmony at 3 a.m., you’re in her neighborhood.