

Compound Prepositions

A compound preposition is a group of words that acts as a single unit of a preposition.

Directions: Underline the compound preposition in each sentence. If there isn't any, leave the sentence as is.

1. Because of a bomb threat, everyone at the mall was evacuated.
2. The flight was delayed due to technical issues.
3. Out of respect, she bowed to her karate master.
4. Since there was no traffic, they arrived ahead of schedule.
5. There will be an extension according to the teacher.
6. Samuel felt courageous because his best friend was next to him.
7. The delivery man had arrived in front of the house.
8. She fought like a deranged black bear.
9. Instead of complaining, he fixed the problem.
10. Rosaline always becomes lazy around Christmas.
11. As far as I know, the parade is still happening.
12. The keys were on top of the cabinet the entire time.
13. She left school early because of a family emergency.
14. On a snowy day, the kids rolled down the hill.
15. He practiced some jokes prior to the date.
16. I always keep a first-aid kit in case of accidents.
17. In the middle of class, a student pretended to have a seizure.
18. The grandma pushed the cart into a tree.

