

Indefinite Pronouns

Indefinite pronouns refer to non-specific people, things, or amounts.

Directions: Circle the word in the parenthesis that fits the sentence correctly.

1. (Many/Much) offer free samples at the fair, but the products are overpriced.
2. (Some/Little) are missing from the donation jar.
3. Anyone who (want/wants) a cake is welcome to take one home.
4. Everybody in the audience (is/are) holding their breath as the curtain rises.
5. (Some/Each) of the cookies is freshly baked.
6. (Is/Are) there enough Hawaiian leis for everyone?
7. (Nothing/Neither) about this system makes logical sense to me.
8. Someone (has/have) left their homework in the classroom.
9. I bought two different pencils, and (both/either) is acceptable for the exam.
10. Some agreed with the politician's statement, but others (criticize/criticizes) it.
11. (Someone/Anyone) left the fridge open last night.
12. There (is/are) nothing to be concerned about.
13. (Several/Everybody) arrive on time for the lecture.
14. When it comes to interior design, sometimes (less/few) is more.
15. Despite the detailed instructions about the presentation, few (has/have) prepared well.
16. You can say (anything/much) in your diary, but you have to keep it private and secure.
17. The movie theater offered 3D glasses, and (someone/each) chose one.
18. Everything (seems/seem) more pleasant after a good night's sleep.

